Will these do?

Councilmembers,

Here are some points to consider as you debate awarding an administrative contract to the Art Center for manhole artwork.

Why outsource to Art Center?

- Art Center has expertise and experience in public outreach. This outreach and the attendant competition may be as important as the artwork.
- Outsourcing design selection is a two year experiment in which staff will learn and the city will develop competencies in our creative sector for when resources like these are needed.

Why manhole covers?

- Fabricator will imprint unique design relatively cheaply.
- Builds community stakeholders for creatively designed infrastructure.
- Not new - Japan has taken this to a new level. link

Who is the audience for this artwork?

- Family and extended family of design competitors.
- Mass media consumers who see photos of Ann Arbor's manhole covers representing a unique creative hotspot where residents design manhole covers.
- Pedestrians and bicyclist who encounter them in crosswalks, near schools, in sidewalks, etc.

Why put creative design in infrastructure?

- Identifies Ann Arbor as a creative hotspot
- We build our cultural infrastructure as we build our physical infrastructure.
- Most cost effective way to build public art.

Subject: Thank you: 5 feet ordinance

Hi Julie and Zachary,

I am in your ward and spoke on behalf of supporting the passing ordinance earlier this evening.

I'm live-streaming the remainder of the council meeting from home and just want to say thank you for your supportive comments during discussion of the ordinance and for your votes. While I understand and acknowledge some of the implementation concerns Jack Eaton and Jane Lumm have voiced, I think the most important first step is exactly this ordinance. I thank you for helping to make this happen. I look forward to working on education in any way I can. I can't speak for the Washtenaw Bicycling and Walking Coalition or Common Cycle (though I am on each board), but there are a lot of folks who are very pleased right now. I am very pleased to move forward in making Ann Arbor bike safe, as well as bicycle friendly.

Thank you for doing what you do,

Brad

Dear Sumi

Thank you for your vote. It is sad that all the concerns expressed were disregarded, in the light of the detention pond-which should not be in the hands of a developer to begin with.

It was really good to meet you tonight- thank you for representing the city and its residents.

The Chennai school i mentioned is called Madhuram Narayanan center for exceptional children and my mother in law Jaya Krishnaswamy is the director. The school has a wonderful model of parents as teachers. Do visit if you can. I can introduce you to my mother-in-law if you wish.

Perhaps you said you were from Ilangai ? and I didn't catch it. Sorry about that! I was fixated at that moment on places in India!

Kind Regards,

Malini Raghavan

Dear Sumi

I am a resident of [REDACTED] Ascot Road. I have attended numerous planning committee meetings relating to the 2250 Ann Arbor Saline project. In agreement with many of my neighbors, I have expressed multiple concerns about the project.

The R4B rezoning continues to raise a number of concerns. These include:

1. Violation of the city's Master plan. Single-family detached units were recommended adjacent to the Lansdowne Subdivision.
2. The large proposed building that will be visible from several homes in our neighborhood is out of character with our neighborhood.
3. The existing woodland and green space in this area, including landmark trees, will be destroyed.
4. The large volume of additional traffic in an out of the large proposed complex will generate multiple traffic safety issues in accident-prone zone.

The site plan itself also continues to raise a number of concerns. These include:

1. The woodlands will be destroyed- this is the major remaining green space after the neighborhood lost a number of Ash trees some years ago. It will take decades to recreate the existing green space.

2. The city, rather than a developer with financial interests, should take responsibility for the proposed retention pond type of project, after evaluating multiple long-term solutions conducted and planned by an team of experts without such conflict of interest.

3. Sanitary sewer volume impacts on the neighborhood, and the harmful effects of resulting footing drain disconnects that will be required.

4. The appearance of a massive proposed 4-level building, out of character with the neighborhood.

I request your attention to these and many other concerns of the neighborhood.

Sincerely, Malini Raghavan
