Subject: The Madison on Main - pedestrian safety

As a resident of the Old West Side who for years walked to work daily from my home on Princeton down Madison to the University, I have lots of experience with seeking the safest walking route.

I think the greatest effort should be made to ensure the safety of pedestrians walking by this building crossing the two driveways, and also the adjacent driveway of 618 South Main. One thing that could be done would be to have the material of the sidewalk cross the driveway, to help reinforce the awareness of drivers entering/exiting the building that they were driving across a pedestrian walkway.

In the illustration below the space reads "driveway" not "sidewalk". This should be changed.
