Council Member Lisa Disch (other members of Council as well),

I have read your final communication in regard to the involuntary separation of Ann Arbor's City Manager, Tom Crawford as well as the independent report written by Ms. Salvatore. I find your conclusions and method of analysis troubling and simply beneath the standards that I would expect for a seasoned Political Science Professor at a distinguished university. The case for any insensitive or derogatory comments directed at any protected groups was ultimately subjective, speculative and disputed by Mr. Crawford. More troubling, the criteria used as the basis for the dismissal appears worthy of a Franz Kafka inspired novel.

I fully support the proposal to ban the sale of fur products in the City. However, the proposal only covers a limited number of species designated as endangered and does not cover the equally cruel practices of farming rabbits and mink for their fur. As you may be aware, Michigan has a significant number of mink farms which became a public health threat during the pandemic. I applaud the City for taking this first step in achieving a more humane society and for being a leader in banning fur sales in the state of Michigan. I hope you will also consider banning all sales of fur products from any species in the near future.

I support the ordinance to ban the sale of fur in Ann Arbor. I'm grateful that City Council will be considering an ordinance to ban the sale of fur, which is a big step forward in protecting animals against cruelty and abuse.

I strongly believe Ranked Choice Voting improves our democracy.

While there are many benefits to Ranked Choice voting, I think the best example to start with is how single-choice votes may mean the will of the voters isn't reflected in election results. For example, if 60% of voters prefer free cheese but split their votes between two free cheese candidates so that they each receive 30% of the vote, the no-free-cheese candidate with 40% of the vote will win. Ranked Choice voting allows for the free-cheese voters to rank both of their candidates before the no-free-cheese candidate, and thus the outcome better reflects voters preferences.

As we've seen in the recent Ranked Choice New York City primary election in June and throughout academic studies, Ranked Choice Voting increases voter engagement, as reflected in higher Democratic turnout than the previous two mayoral primary elections in New York City, as well as its most diverse city council in the city's history.
