Subject: Fwd: Strive at Work - minutes-October 20th meeting

Dear All,

Notes from October 20th Strive Committee Meeting

In attendance: Wendy Correll, David Keren, Andy Dahlman, Mary D'Alessandro.,
Lois Stenger, Anne Glendon, Chris Ekpiken (new member)

- STRIVE at work program- Rick Reid has arranged a tour at Zingerman's BakeHouse- November 9th
- Anne Glendon noted this tour is appropriate because Zingerman's tends to hire non-traditional employees, with materials for employees training and education.
- Rick Reid has also arranged a tour of City Hall for the Spring- offer multiple job opportunities.
- It was suggested that rides may have to be organized and coordinated with Stone school and mentors for these visits.
- It was asked: If the students are interested in working- how do they start or how do they follow up if given the opportunity?
- Are there work study programs available?
- How can the Subway lunches have more of an impact on students? To have students more engaged.
- brainstorm with Stone School on this, suggestions being: create a to-do list for job preparation, how to present themselves, job skill interviews (students respond well to role play), transition from high school to college (note taking, responsibility)
- explore different career as well as opportunities in different fields from what WCC has to offer, note the value of certificate programs, as opposed to a degree

- When coordinating with WCC- be focused and goal specific- help students define this,
- Ask Stone school about steps with partners to see how to achieve their goals a year from now. Both should know what the path is and what requirements are needed,
- Budgeting skills should be a part of this- do they have an apartment, car, live at home etc. .
- Coordinate with student a logical model based on individual- should have short term, mid-term and long term goals,
- Model should address adaptability- stress to students to be adaptive to everyday stresses, to use their inner strength to adapt, and what they should do today to make that happen.

It was suggested to bring the students together periodically - an informal support group. It was asked how should this be facilitated?

In this group adaptability could be discussed. What type of skill sets and how they translate over time? Look to the job that they may have today, help them to see how their current work skills, could be applied to future employment.

Anne Glendon- noted that Corner Health Centre is a good resource for the students and their families. It takes Medicare, helping mother, father and children up to age 21.

They are capable of providing whole body whole body and mind care. An excellent resource and good alternative to WCC and Stone School. Opportunity to discuss benefits of Corner Health Center at Subway lunches.

Concerning scholarships:

After the first year, commitment to the mentee is left up to their individual mentor.

After the first year, traditionally WCC will file the extension for funds. They have to use the money or lose it.

12 of 14 students from last year have filed the extension. This shows that a great amount of the money has been used.

Mentee- is awarded a Baker scholarship- from Washtenaw Community Foundation.

Baker allows to apply for additional funds beyond what is awarded (as long as the recipient is a non-smoker)

-OR from Rotary scholarship through STRIVE- Rotary does not offer additional funds beyond what is awarded.

November meeting will be STRIVE at WORK- Zingerman's BakeHouse tour. No meeting on November 17th.

January meeting- it was suggested that this be a session for training the mentors. The mentors may make a request for a mentee after our Subway lunch Andy Dahlamn tries to match the mentor with the mentee. Currently 36 applicants that are eligibly enrolled at Stone School. It is the choice of Stone School.

The mentee must meet the criteria of drug free, alcohol free, attend class, academically acceptable.

Subject: [WBWC] Re: Factors affecting bicyclist's injury rates

Re: Paul's comments, the Census and American Community Survey count only commutes to work (in April), so they substantially under-count total bicycling for transportation.

Certainly, folks who bike need to know the rules of the road and observe safe biking practices. That said, I continue to believe (with the study's authors) that safe infrastructure is the most critical piece of the puzzle. As observed in the discussion, safety comes in numbers, and the way to accomplish that is to make biking comfortable for everyone.

As long as we need to wear reflective clothing to be assured of our safety, bicycling will not be a primary transportation mode for the majority of the population. For the time being, I'll still wear reflective clothing at night, but I look forward to a time when that's no longer needed.

Lights are another story; the amount of biking without lights in A2 is pretty distressing. City, U-M may need to launch a campaign on the subject.

Subject: AAPSEF Board Meeting Reminder and I4E Committee Notes

Hi all ~

This is a reminder that we have a board meeting this Thursday, November 18 from 4:00 – 5:00 pm at Dykema.

One of the agenda items is a vote on an Initiatives for Excellence grant recommendation; the committee is recommending that AAPSEF provide $108,400 in funding for the Elementary World Language program this year. As you know from past reports the committee had many questions about this grant and the District has provided the answers, see below:

1. More detailed description of funding provided by both AAPS and UM for program? The District provided a detailed budget that showed expenses, including donated staff time, for UM and AAPS.
2. What is the District's plan for rolling program up to 5th grade in 2011? The District is committed rolling this program up to 5th grade in 2011; in a worst case scenario where there wasn't funding to have the program in 3 grades, they would roll up to 4th and 5th grade so that students who had already started in the program would not have an interruption in their language learning.
3. What is the District's plan for articulation to middle school so that students would have the opportunity for continuous world language study? The District is committed to providing instructional alignment for world language between elementary and middle schools. The current world language department chair is working in cooperation with UM to make this happen in 2012.
4. Is there an evaluation component? UM School of Education is responsible for the program evaluation component and they will share their data with AAPSEF.
5. How many students are impacted? There are 110 3rd and 4th grade classrooms and the program impacts 2,472 students.

Based on these answers the I4E committee has decided to recommend the $108,400 in funding which will cover the District's contribution to UM for the program as well as materials and supplies for the program. If approved, our funding letter will contain language that stipulates program must roll up to 5th grade next year, that AAPSEF will have access to all program evaluation done by UM, and that the AAPSEF funding is to be used pay the District's partnership contribution and for materials/supplies.

If you have any questions please let me know. We will discuss this on Thursday before voting.

Thanks,
Helen

Dear Sabra,

It was thoughtful of you to try to move DS12 to an earlier spot in the meeting tonight. Thanks for trying. I am at home watching while grading papers.

Also, thanks for your interest and participation in our little work day at Bandemer. While you are inspired by your fellow community members working to make a difference in our parks, I am inspired by your interest in the people on the ground doing mundane things. I truly appreciate your support. You are a cheerleader. It is sad that the politics of our time are usually oriented in the opposite direction: the citizens cheer on the politicians who are in the spotlight. You are a refreshing example of democracy as an idealist would like to see it manifested.

Ann Arbor City Council has been presented with a plan to out source the hugely successful compost operations to a Bio Solids (poop-sludge) operator from New York. It will give away the $5,000,000 operations to a private firm to operate who will then CHARGE the city to drop off compostables there. This fee will have the affect of killing the fledgling food waste composting program as well the whole concept composting.

Any material composted saves 25-50% over the cost of land filling, therefore saving enormous amounts of money. It completes the recycling loop locally by taking trash and turning it into a cash product-compost, rather than hauling it huge distances to landfill it and create methane gas.

Please tell council to keep composting in house and expand it. Council is looking at approving a contract to BioSolids operator WeCare, tonight, Nov 15, 2010

To speak to council call the clerk at 794-6140. It's easy just say Ann Arbor compost is great and keep it locally managed, and expand it not reduce it.

Paul,
David Rutledge is a wonderful commissioner, and he is going to Lansing in January. The other two Road Commissioners are Doug Fuller and Fred Veigel. I have found Commissioner Fuller to be very involved and prepared. When I have residents call me with concerns, he is the first to respond even if that means meeting me in a subdivision at 7am. Commissioner Wes Prater is the County Board Liaison to the Road Commission but is not a voting member of the Road Commission even though he sits up at the table. He is very involved in the work of the Road Commission and is able to answer any concerns you may have.

Not sure if you were just mixing up some of the names so I wanted to clarify. Kristin Neither Prater or Sizemore appeared to have done any preparation for this final vote on the two "road diet" motions, and in fact I wondered if they had ever received any data regarding these issues, as they seemed totally clueless. After listening to staff, seeing their patience in tracking down the studies that obviously had been presented to the Board earlier in the process, I was impressed that they (staff) maintained a professional and patient attitude. They, and Rutledge emphasized more than once that "data based" decisions were what should drive outcomes.

I have no idea what impact local resident concerns (unwarranted given the data) have in the Boards deliberations, but it was obvious that as in most politics, "the greasy wheel gets the grease" even when facts seem to be clear and unambiguous.

You all have my ear! For those who are not sure of the process, the 3 Road Commissioners are all appointed by the 11 Commissioners on the County Board of Commissioners. The applicants have already applied, and an appointment will be made at our December 1st meeting of the County Board. My recommendation to the group and anyone interested in sharing concerns with the commissioners prior to our appointment is to come to our meeting this Wednesday evening at 6:30pm and speak during public comment. Our meetings are televised and usually watched by a Road Commissioner or two. Sending us emails is also effective, we just received one from Paul.

The direct email address that goes to all County Commissioners and Administration is: 1-boc@listserver.ewashtenaw.org

All of us have our phone numbers listed on www.ewashtenaw.org

I will be sure to carry your message, which I am committed to, of safe roadways for all residents on foot, bike, car etc.

My voice can only be stronger with your participation during the open meeting public speaking time. My email is judgek@ewashtenaw if you have any questions. Hope to see you this Wednesday at 6:30pm. If you come by, please be sure to introduce yourself to me prior to the meeting.

Per your request, I wanted to share our thoughts on what we see as an actionable timeframe for this project from the point we are at now. As a backdrop, and assuming that the City was prepared to proceed on the basis of our recommendation, I thought referring to Valiant's own proposed timeline was a good starting point. They envisioned a roughly 18 month period from selection to finalization of all aspects of the deal and its financing. Concurrent with that 18 month financing period they would be proceeding with design and other necessary predevelopment activities such that a project could commence construction within a month or two of closing on all financing and the transaction as a whole. While this timeline might ultimately move around through our negotiation with them, it's a good place to start for discussion purposes. Assuming that window, I could envision the following cadence of activities from today:

- Finalization of recommendation and selection by Evaluation Committee
Month 1
- Completion of Letter of Intent for presentation to Council with selection
Month 2
- Completion of Development Agreement (subject to financing and entitlements)
Month 6
- Completion of Entitlement Process
Month 12
- Completion of financing and other necessary transaction documents
Month 18
- Commencement of Construction
Month 20

This is obviously highly simplified. For instance, we recognize that a deal of this complexity would actually involve myriad negotiated agreements not specified on this timeline. The schedule assumes that those agreements would be fully enumerated in the Development Agreement, and hammered out in the period between execution of that document and the completion of the transaction (i.e. between months 6 and 18). A schedule such as this, would actually permit entitlement to slip quite a bit and still keep on track with financing. Obviously, the extent and length of the entitlement process is a bit of an unknown to us at this point. As for financing, my sense is that this team could actually move more swiftly than 18 months provided that we had nailed down the particulars of our deal to a sufficient degree.

Appreciate your input, and in particular the specific work plan elements surrounding the various Council approvals and entitlement process.

Thanks

Session #1: Capitalizing on Complexity: Insights from the 2010 Global Public Sector CEO Study

The conversations in this session offer valuable insight into the agendas and actions of global leaders who are coping with and managing change—their most pressing challenge. In 2010, we identified a new primary challenge: complexity. CEOs told us they operate in a world that is increasingly volatile, uncertain, multi-faceted and structurally different. Many shared the view that incremental changes are no longer sufficient.

Session #2: Using analytics in the public sector ♦ From insights to actions to outcomes.

The IBM Institute for Business Value (IBV) is conducting a global Public Sector study "Using analytics in the public sector—From insights to actions to outcomes." This session explores the use of analytics in this sector.

Session #3: Gain Insights, Optimize Resources and Results

Public sector organizations today face the same challenge as those in the private sector—the need to do more with less. But they must do so under greater scrutiny from legislators and the public and without the top-down authority that private companies can wield. A performance management approach can help to improve outcomes and rebuild a sagging public confidence in government. Today, government performance management is made simple, efficient and effective by solutions developed by IBM. Learn about them in this session.
