Comment: The house was entrusted to UM to preserve. It's not UM's to sell, especially without consent from the family who donated it, and the community. In an era when it seems money is the only thing that matters, it would be nice to see UM rise above that and be a leader in preserving history and beauty in the community.

Comment: This house is a treasure with historic significance. It should not be destroyed. The mistake of destruction of our country's heritage has happened too often in the past and almost always causes regrets.

Comment: The Inglis house was the home of my Great Great Uncle Jim and Aunt Elizabeth. I can share many stories about visiting the house, as it was next door to my Great Aunt Margaret's house on Highland Road and down the street from my greatparents' house on Geddes Avenue. I cannot be there this Thursday, unfortunately, to represent my family, as a cousin just advised me of this travesty. However, I will travel from Atlanta to A2 with enough notice to share stories of the brilliance of my ancestor, a true Industrial Revolution entrepreneur and contemporary of Henry Ford. When this House was donated to the University of Michigan, my understanding from family legend has it that everyone in the Inglis family revered the University and thought it would be a worthy caretaker of the home in perpetuity. THIS IS NOT WHAT MY ANCESTORS INTENDED NOR WOULD WANT FROM THEIR GIFT of this magnificent home and grounds. I am grateful to the many A2 residents who are protesting the BoR's most ungrateful and unwise decision to sell this historic property. I add my voice to theirs in dismay, horror, and disbelief.

Comment: Donated land should not be sold off by the school. If the costs are too great for you to maintain them it should be offered back to the donors. To use a non-monetary gift for monetary gain without even consulting the donors is gross misuse of the gift.

As Michigan alums, we are saddened to hear the University is considering selling this treasure. Once it's gone, it's gone forever. Do you really want to give this up for scholarships that are spent in an instant? Please find a way to save the Inglis House!

Comment: As we look to the future we also need to value the past. Inglis House has always afforded the opportunity to demonstrate the graciousness of UM and the officers to all our guests from around the world as well as the U.S. It is probably one of the few original buildings left on campus and should be renovated rather than sold as it is an important part of the UM History as we celebrate our Bicentennial. Why not start a capital campaign to renovate Inglis House?

Comment: Please consider designating this home for community use if the university does not want to keep it. It has so much history and it seems as though there should be far more input from alumni and Ann arbor residents then there has been. I understand it is your right to sell the property, but is it the right thing to do?

Comment: Please save the Inglis House. Attend to community impact, honor donor intentions, and preserve history. The location is one of serene beauty and residential history.

The use of this location can embrace even more diverse university members--students, faculty, alums--in creative design and collaborative study. Intrinsic value.

The family of the donors said they were stunned at the move to sell it.

Comment: I recently moved to Michigan and own a house several blocks from the Inglis Estate. As a longtime advocate of historic preservation, I'm astounded that the regents of the University of Michigan voted to sell the Inglis House and property "as is." I think that the University has a duty to prevent the demolition of the architecturally unique, historically significant Inglis house. It is a gem which needs to be preserved for future generations to appreciate and enjoy.

Comment: My family has lived for 33 years on Highland Road near this Historic Home and grounds. If indeed the University of Michigan Regents, utilizing poor judgement and operating without Community or Donor or Neighborhood input (two important Regent "open meetings" did not have this critical issue on the agendas), have determined the University MUST vacate itself from this property there are several options other than simply selling to the highest bidder;
- - This gift could be returned back to the Donor Family
- - At a minimum there should be a DEED RESTRICTION on the sale of the entire property not allowing for house destruction or sub-dividing of the land
- - Actual work should be done contacting Michigan Alums who have large thriving businesses who could utilize the property for a Corporate Retreat or in the case of Mr. Larry Page for example, whose business GOOGLE has a strong presence in Ann Arbor, the house could be used for a variety of corporate uses.

Comment: The Inglis estate is an amazing piece of local heritage that should be preserved. The UofM, has been entrusted with the care of the historic structure and grounds and should follow through on its commitments to do so.

As one suggestion for reuse, the University of Michigan could model the University of Minnesota, Duluth and their caretaking of the Glensheen mansion, which is now a great attraction for visitors.

Comment: This plan to sell to a developer, my grandparents late home which was gifted to the University in good faith, is an extremely unsatisfactory outcome to their generosity. I am confident it is NOT what they would wish to see happen. I am strongly in opposition to any sale except to an individual family that would legally be required to always sell in perpetuity to a single family who would treasure my grandparents' gift as was intended. I plan to let the regents know of my thoughts. Dorothy Inglis Courtis

Comment: It saddens me to learn that an institution, such as the University of Michigan that considers itself an esteemed contributor to the community and a steward of historic grounds, would eschew the wishes and understandings of the donors (the Inglis Family) for the sake of profit. Not only is this estate historically significant for who it has housed (The Dalai Lama, President Gerald Ford, Robert Frost, Arthur Miller, Members of the royal families of Japan, Greece, Thailand and the Netherlands, Mike Wallace, Jessye Norman, Drs. Christiaan Barnard and Jonas Salk, Leonard Bernstein and Vladimir Horowitz), but for the architectural integrity of its structure and grounds. Shame on you UM!

Comment: To say that the University can't afford to repair Inglis House is laughable. Wherever you look in this city there is University construction and development. Surely, taking care of a treasure like the Inglis property is within means and would indicate good faith to the Inglis family and to the community.
