Ed Vielmetti, 1210 Brooklyn Avenue, Ann Arbor, commented about the Special Meeting of the City Planning Commission Executive Committee held on August 12th. He said these meetings take place sometimes throughout the year. He noted that the City had followed proper noticing of these meetings, but would like to read minutes from these meetings.

Will Leaf, Ann Arbor's Housing and Human Services Advisory Board, said their board's mission is to make recommendations to City Council and City Administration in order to address the Ann Arbor Housing and Human Services' needs for low income residents. He reviewed the Board's discussion on how to meet the affordable housing goals which City Council adopted in February 2015; the commitment towards creating 2800 new affordably priced rental units by 2035. He reported that their Board agreed that one possibility was for the Planning Commission to review the City's zoning and development regulations and consider changes that would increase the number of affordable units in the City. He said the City has already taken a step towards that by supporting the Accessory Dwelling Unit Ordinance. Leaf raised the issue, suggesting their Board and the Planning Commission work together to meet the City's Affordable Housing goals. He said it might be beneficial to hold a joint meeting in the future and asked the Commission to keep this in mind when they consider their Work Program. (Handout provided for the record)

*Services Advisory Board, spoke about Ann Arbor having become homogenous. She explained that cities and communities across the country are going through the same issue but are striving to find ways to create more affordable housing and also to find ways to foster diversity of housing types within residential areas and asked if Ann Arbor should also be a part of this initiative.
