Dear Christopher,

It was nice talking to you earlier on the phone today. I want to do some kind of poetry trail with paper hearts with my poems on them on trees or the ground but i'm not sure if there's a nice forest area for that at this park or if I'd need to put the poems on sticks stuck in the earth creating a path which would also be neat. And I have a box that I will have decorated to describe my prophecy at the beginning of the trail. I want to do my short dance with my asian fans at different times perhaps whenever I feel there's enough people watching/who want to see me dance. Definitely at sunset would be a nice time to do it. I will have my books for sale I make myself and sign any if desired. There will be fairy lights to line the path at night or even during the day too. And paper mache feathers, scrolls, and dancers to show the way. I look forward to hearing from you soon. If you or anyone has any input on any of this let me know. I'm not sure what to say about having it be an everlasting donation to the public. Maybe it can be once there's been more attention brought to me by doing an event? I'm not sure.

Sincerely,
Michelle
