Hi Bret,

I am reaching out regarding my application for the Transportation Commission. I applied for the vacancy in October. Mayor Taylor and I met today to further discuss my application.

I hope to join the commission to further our Vision Zero and multi-modal goals. My interest also extends to citizen engagement on social media. Using my modest platform, I post online about Ann Arbor's transit issues as a way to share information and learn more through crowdsourcing (i.e. the comment section). Through that process I have discovered that local citizens care deeply about these issues but lack updated information and action steps that would allow them to contribute to the conversation at the city level. My advocacy aims to bridge that gap.

The website indicates that there is currently a commission vacancy. I would love to fill that spot. Please let me know what the next steps are in this process. I look forward to hearing from you!

Warm regards,
Hannah
