Subject: Don't restrict housing choices

Hello, I am a resident of Ann Arbor and have been my entire life. I am a young worker and would love to continue to live in Ann Arbor long-term but due to the extremely limited supply of housing and high costs this unfortunately seems unrealistic. Because of the city's historic zoning restrictions, working-class and young working people are increasingly unable to afford to live here, which I see negatively impacting many sectors of the City, from its culture to its traffic to its restaurant scene. Apart from that, I also believe it is outrageously unfair that working people cannot afford to live in the city that they themselves build and operate on a day to day basis, forcing further cost burdens on already-struggling families when they must pay for increased transportation costs rather than living in an affordable home closer to where they work and do business.

We need denser, more affordable housing options within the city which will improve the City for all people!

Sincerely,
Annika Moran
