Subject: Second Downtown

Dear Planning Commission Members:

Given the current chaos in Washington, would developing a second downtown with constantly fluctuating costs to development be prudent? Furthermore, isn't a 300,000 dollar bond placed on the citizens of Ann Arbor foolhardy in a time of great economic uncertainty? Isn't it likely the developer will go bankrupt much like the developer at the site of The George did? Think of General Motors. Please don't add to the ongoing chaos.

Sincerely,
Brenda Millett
