Dear Planning Commission,

I'm a software engineer in my mid thirties. You would think that I'd find it easy to afford to buy a home in Ann Arbor, but it's actually difficult. We need a lot more affordable housing in our region.

One of the ways, albeit not the exclusive way, is to significantly increase supply. And if we want to increase supply without promoting sprawl, then we need to dramatically increase density in the city. Please be bold in increasing density in neighborhoods.

Thank you,
D. Parnell McCarter
