Fantastic. Thank you so much. Does 1:30 pm on Thursday work for you? I will send a Zoom link closer to the time.

Dear Council Member Nelson,

Hi, my name is David Sackrider and I am a student at the University of Michigan. One of the journalism classes that I am taking this semester requires me to write a piece featuring a solution to a problem in the community, and I was hoping to write about ORD-21-22, for which you were the lead sponsor.

In pursuit of this, I was wondering if you would be willing to do an interview about the ordinance of Zoom this week. I'm looking to learn more about how the ordinance came to pass, what exactly it does, and the impact it has made in the community.

The sooner you can get back to me the better. Because of the nature of the assignment, I need to be able to conduct the interview before 5 PM on Thursday (2/24).

Thank you for your time,

David Sackrider

Design with museum curator Margaret Carney

Wednesday, March 9, 2022 at 6:30 p.m. Eastern Time

Curator Margaret Carney will share a few stories about pieces in the museum's collection during this inaugural presentation in the museum's on-line lecture series. Be prepared to be bedazzled by some special dinnerware sets and witness unique design solutions to the question of what utensils to use when dining with the Queen or at Dairy Queen. While you won't learn any etiquette during this presentation, you will learn why you might want a Geiger Counter at your dining table. Upcoming sessions will invite you to visit private collections, learn about dinnerware designers and contemporary artists, and hear from researchers and authors on major potteries and Mid-Century Modern dinnerware.

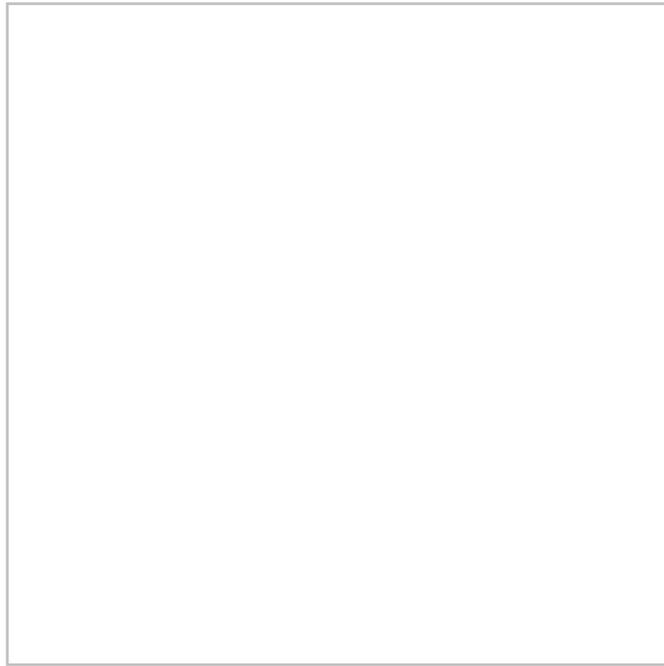

You may register for the free virtual presentation here, and we will send you a link the afternoon of the event.

The link to join the event will also be posted at the Ann Arbor District Library website (<https://aadl.org/events/>) about 15 minutes before the event.

IMoDD's Unforgettable Dinnerware On-Line Lecture Series

The International Museum of Dinnerware Design is pleased to announce the creation of a series of on-line conversations that relate to dinnerware. This series, titled Unforgettable Dinnerware, will include tours of private collections and artist studios, allow one to meet directly with dinnerware designers and contemporary artists, and share presentations by researchers and authors on major dinnerware manufacturers, including Mid-Century Modern dinnerware. These conversations will be presented via Zoom in partnership with the Ann Arbor District Library. Our Spring 2022 series begins on March 9, and subsequent conversations are scheduled on the second Wednesday of each month through June. [\[Link\]](#)

Here is a sneak preview about IMoDD, in case you are not that familiar with what we have to offer. This YouTube video was recorded in April 2021, and inspired the Unforgettable Dinnerware series.
