To the Transportation Commission:

What's the plan for more protected bike lanes?

I have about a third of my downtown commute protected, but the other 2/3 range from quiet neighborhood streets to sketchy stripes of paint on busy roads where I know people have been right hooked at corners (Packard/East U especially noted). I completely avoid State/Packard/Hill if I possibly can.

It would be great to know where that stuff lives at some level of detail (e.g. is everything in the CIP, or does some of it happen outside of that planning)?

Thinking about getting an e-bike to forestall the need for any changes to our one-car family or a 2d car, hence the specific interest in better municipal infrastructure.

thanks

Ed
